There is a nook, a little gem of an autumn festival which evokes not only the fast approaching equinox and the harvest that comes with it, but also dishes up home-cooked meals, family honored traditions, and an entire day of music and entertainment. Nestled perfectly in the backyard of Phil and Angel Simon of Warwick, Ma, the Old 78 Farm Fall Festival held this year on September 20, played host to hundreds of people looking to gently ease away from summer and cross the threshold to a colorful autumn.

After Fab is a brilliant tribute conception featuring the music of all four Beatles as solo artists. I'm pretty sure there is no other band actively reconstructing the cornucopia of jams that these four, legendary artists concocted over the years. Where else can you get McCartney's "Band on the Run," Starr's "Photograph," Harrison's "Bangla Desh," and Lennon's "Instant Karma" all in one intimate show? I saw it that night at Old 78 and was struck dumb.

The Adam Ezra Group is certainly no stranger to Old 78. Mr. Ezra and his percussionist Turtle have been playing the festival every year since its inauguration.
